The Curse of God: Why I Left Islam by Harris Sultan - We still have hope

(Miscellaneous)

You all would have heard that Islam is the fastest growing religion in the world. It is, but mainly because of high reproduction rates rather than adult conversions. There is no evidence to suggest that the number of adults converting to Islam is higher than the number of adults leaving it.

Let's look at the rising number of atheists in some Muslim countries:

Country	Difference		Total Current Number (in millions) ⁸⁰
Pakistan	+1% in 2001	+2% in 2012	4 Million
Turkey	+6% in 2013	+9.4% in 2015	4.8 Million
Malaysia	N/A	+6% in 2012	1.8 Million
Saudi Arabia	N/A	+5% in 2012	1.6 Million
Total Number of Atheists			12.9 Million ¹¹⁶

As a Turk, I can tell you that most Turkish youth left Islam (although the government is trying to the contrary)

What about the youth from the Eastern part of Turkey near the Middle East. Most Turks on Reddit are from the west such as Istanbul. Turkey is a very diverse country and though I feel that atheists are more common now there are still large religiously conservative parts as well.

I bet they automatically label you a muslim if you're born in a muslim household like me and i dislike this assumption quite a bit since they get teary when you reject it

Yes, in Malaysia the government will not stop considering you a Muslim if you're born in a Muslim family. Quite a big deal too as they have a separate legal system for Muslims and non-Muslims.

There is also a neat little trick where if you announce that you have left Islam you get to redact your announcement and be a good little muslim or they hang you by your neck :DDD.

Isn't Islam such a wonderful, peaceful and loving religion?

yes Turkish people, especially Turkish youth leaves Islam more than ever but the only problem with this post is that Turkey is not a Muslim country it is(or was i really doubt it) a country with a Muslim majority.
